COLUMBUS DOWNED
IN OVERTIME GAMEToledo Mud Hens Swamped
at St. Paul by 13
to 14 ScoreWITH the scene of action shifted to the west in the American Association baseball race, western teams continue to deliver defeats to the eastern members of the league.The Minneapolis Millers, playing their first home game yesterday, downed the Columbus Senators again in the extra period, 9 to 8. Two star hurlers of the Leubolden, Pete Harris and Larry Winters, failed to check the incoming Kels, and they swayed to the victory which was toured to 10 innings.Kansas City remained in the usual form, by harding the second place Indianapolis club a shut out. The score was 20. Sheehan, hurling conquer, was the star of the game.He not only kept the Indians back without a run but allowed them one by only a Schupp, on the mound for the Hoovers, pitched a good game of ball, but the support was lacking.St. Paul, also playing its first home game of the season, was anxious to show the fans what could be done, and the Saints took the Toledo Mud Hens into camp with a 13 to 14 score.Bubbles Hargrave, making his first appearance at home as manager of the Saints, was the hero of the game. This home run and two doubles drove in five runs.Milwaukee and Louisville, holding down eighth and seventh positions, respectively, played their usual raced form of America's greatest sport, and battled to a tie, 1 all, as the game was called at the end of the thirteenth on account of darkness.Fiddle Grimes, new shortstop of the Browns, featured both field and at bat, although his error in the ninth permitted the Colonels to tie the score.AKRON IS READY FOR 100-MILE AUTO RACESpeed Event Will Start at 3 O'Clock Sunday Af-
ternoonAKRON, May 3.—The Rubber City sweepstakes, a 100 mile auto race to be held at the Akron-Cleveland board speedway Sunday, will be one of the most spectacular of all racing events ever held in this part of the country.It is but a day off and the carefree happiness has descended upon Akron, holding sway in its heart today, many celebrities of the sporting fraternity, including "One Eye" Conley and "Buckie" Baker, are seen daily holloping with the race drivers and their managers either at the speed way or at the crowded hotels.Four or more of the best independent auto race drivers in the country are here for the inaugural auto race classic of the 1930 season. Ray Campbell "Dutch" Bauman, "Howdy" Wilcox, John Clevenger, "Speedy" Phelps and the rest of the little gun daredevils are here all ready for the test. All will qualify in the time trials, the 15 making the best time will start in the 100 mile grand, the others may be good enough and maybe a fraction of a second will determine the 75 who will take the starter's flag.Qualification trials will be held at 8 a. m. The race is slated for 3 p. m.Crumbs of comfort are all right in their own way, but it takes a lot of them to make a square meal.People who don't believe more than half that they hear are in danger of finding themselves in bad company.BASEBALL

MARIONITES' HOPESLocal Residents Hold Stock in Property Located Near Rich Ore VeinPossibly, that many Marion residents, aware that in a rich gold strike recently made in Nevada looked to day when word was received here that an ore vein had been found near the property of the American Car rara Marble Co.Many local persons own stock in the marble company, it is said. It is estimated that nearly $300,000 worth of stock is held here.The ore discovery which may make the stock extremely valuable was made recently within 1,500 feet of the marble company property. According to reports here, indications are that the vein extends directly under the quarry holdings. The ore is said to have assayed $80,000 to the ton.The marble company stock was sold here when the company was organized about 1913. The stock is said to have never paid dividends.Although the marble in the Carrara quarries is of extremely high grade it is of little value commercially due to numerous fissures which make it impossible to take out the stone in large blocks.The quarry is located at Carrara, Nes. Several Marion persons who purchased blocks of the stock went to Carrara when the sale was being promoted here.

13 ARE NOW DEAD IN MAY DAY RIOTS

Clashes Terminate in Violent Battle at Naukoellin: Communist Ambush Auto

HELEN, May 3.—At least 13 persons were killed in the series of clashes between communists and police on the eve of May Day. The fighting terminated early today with the communists retreating to Naukoellin, a small town about 125 miles from the city. The communists were ambushed by the police in the street. The police then brought their armored cars into play and according to an announcement by the communist headquarters, used hand grenades freely.

men after a barrage of vicious attacks. According to the communists three persons were killed in Naukoellin and 20 wounded, but it was believed that the casualties were higher. Ambush Police Auto. Hostilities resumed in the suburb last night when the communists attempted to demonstrate in protest of the stringent measures taken by the police in enforcing order on May day. Numerous minor skirmishes occurred before the fighting became general. Several times the communists attempted to parade along Hermann-Stresser, the principal thoroughfare of the suburb, but were dispersed by the police who made 20 arrests. Then the communists ambushed a police automobile driving from windows and hallways. One policeman was wounded. A branch office of the Sheet newspapers was stoned and all its windows broken. The police then brought their armored cars into play and according to an announcement by the communist headquarters, used hand grenades freely.

Erect New Barricade. Reverting to their tactics of the night before, the communists destroyed street lamps in the wedding district and under cover of darkness erected a new barricade behind which they resisted police efforts to dislodge them by weapons of every kind, sticks, stones, broken bottles and an occasional pistol. To keep casualties down, police ordered all residents to lock and barade all windows and doors and keep to their quarters meanwhile throwing a cordon about the district to prevent anyone from entering the danger zone.

2 DEAD IN CRASH

Strikes Trailer Near Parkman, O.;
Pennsylvania Couple Victims.

WARREN, May 3.—W. D. Strethorn, 50, and his wife, 45, of Bradock, Pa., were killed when their automobile ran into a truck trailer on the Warren-Cleveland Road near Parkman.

Investigators said the truck had swerved from the road, striking a fence, a tree and a culvert. The truck's four-wheel trailer swung out in the road, and Strethorn's car, speeding down a long hill, ran squarely into it. The necks of both Mr. and Mrs. Strethorn were broken.

BURNS KILL WOMAN, 63. PORTSMOUTH, May 3.—Mrs. Mary Mitchen, 63, of the village of Fallen Timber, near here, died of burns inflicted when she accidentally set fire to some scrubby. The flames ignited her clothing and she ran a quarter of a mile to her home. Her daughter extinguished the flames, but she had been fatally burned.

8,000 HEAR "MANON." CLEVELAND, May 3.—"Manon," Massenet's classic opera, the fourth offering of the Metropolitan opera company during the spring grand opera festival was presented at Public Hall before another near-capacity audience last night. About 8,000 persons heard Lucrezia Tori and Benjuno Gili in the leading parts.

NASH "400"

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

$1024

Delivered,
Fully Equipped,
Nothing More
to Buy!

Compare
delivered, fully-equipped prices

See why Nash is lower!

ON the basis of quality, the Nash "400" should cost more than other cars in its competitive field. It actually costs less!

Nash engineers—one of the industry's outstanding engineering organizations—have created a finer motor car. They have developed the high-compression, 7-bearing motor to its highest point of perfection and power. The exclusive Nash outboard mounting of hydraulic shock absorbers doubles their effectiveness and creates supreme riding ease. And here is the "world's easiest driving control," in this new and finer motor car.

These are but a few of many "400" features of superiority.

Why then, is the Nash "400" lower priced?

Here is the explanation. Every Nash "400" is now factory-equipped with the accessories, purchased at factory savings and included in the factory price of the car. Bumpers, shock absorbers, spare tire lock and tire cover come with the car and are not added later as "extras," at retail prices.

You will find some dealers (not Nash dealers) charging as much as $50 or $60 extra for bumpers alone.

Compare the delivered, fully equipped price of any Nash "400" with the delivered, fully equipped prices of competitive cars. You'll see the saving!

Eat BETTER Food!
More HEALTHFUL Food!

Use the New
Method of Cooking
Without Water—

More Delicious Food at a Much Lower Cost

Stop boiling the real food values—the necessary vitamins—out of food. Use the new way which science has discovered. Cook the much-needed minerals, iron, calcium, into your food, not out of it! Tests show that under the old method of cooking we lost—threw away—40% of valuable body-building elements.

Your own experience proves this to be true. When you cook soup, your meat is left flat, tasteless. You have "boiled out" the food value. It is in the soup. So it is a fact that this new method of cooking assures you better tasting and more healthful food!

A Whole Meal Over
One Flame!

Cooking without water saves fuel. One burner will take care of meat, potatoes, vegetables and even puddings. Saves washing six or more pots and pans. Cooking requires no watching or attention.

WEST MAY DENY YANKEES THIRD FLAG

SECTIONAL BATTLES TO TEST STRENGTH

Eastern American League Teams Move West, While Western Nines of National Play in East; Will Determine Status of Race

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, May 3 — They are starting to strike a trial balance in the major leagues today, as the west comes east and the east goes west for baseball's first big show down of the 1929 season, an international exposure that will tell the New York Yankees in particular much of what they wish to know about the immediate future. The telling may be done in somewhat mournful numbers, for the Yankees are headed into the land that yielded them their last two pennants and now rise up to deny them a third. The western end of the American league no longer is mere back in the pants for the club that weeks a league record with four consecutive victories.

Must Have Winning Percentage on Road

FEW clubs ever won a pennant unless they could show a winning percentage on the road, a fact that makes these sectional meetings what they are. The west's tour of the national league, therefore, is a most significant one, since the Chicago Cubs, hot choice for the pennant this year, couldn't beat anything except a retreat in this section during the last two seasons.

National Has Big Time Today

THEY are drawing a breather out there today, as the west doesn't take up the sectional cudgel until tomorrow. The National league will have its big day this afternoon, weather willing. The invading west should find, as usual, only the Giants capable of making a play against it. The Braves don't figure and, unless all calculations are knocked over, they will be down with the Dodgers and Phils before the invasion is ended.

Failure on Road Licked Cubs in 1928

IF failure on the road licked the Cubs in 1927 and 1928, success against the West made the Yankees. This was especially true of the 1927 season in which the Yankees won the field by August. They might have won, anyhow, but it was the 21 out of 22 victories they gained over the St. Louis Browns, the 17 out of 22 from Chicago and 12 decisions respectively over the Tigers and Indians that made the landslide possible.

Browns Look Part of Real Contender

THE day seems to be gone when that can happen again. The Browns, leading the American League today with 11 out of their first 15, look the part of a real contender. They aren't perfect but a club with that kind of pitching can understand the part until such time as perfection comes along. Detroit still has its hitting and apparently an increased will to win. The Tigers are a better club and you can go and bet it that way. The same with the Indians, whose lack of punch last year certainly has been remedied in some extent by the addition of Averill and Fulk. As for the White Sox, it may be that they are beginning to see something for the first time since the black Sox tried to ascertain just what made the pillow slip.

SCHEDULES DRAWN UP FOR INDUSTRIAL, COMMERCIAL LOOPS

Teams Will Hold Final Practice Sessions Next Week

With the drawing up of the schedules for the Industrial and Commercial leagues, teams are all set for the opening of Marion's four recreation ball loops the week of May 12. Thirty-two teams will take part in league play this season one less than entered last season. Each league will have eight teams entered.

LEADERS SET MAY 11 TO OPEN LOOP PLAY

Schedule for Four Teams in Junior League Drawn Up

At a meeting of all the managers of the teams entered in the American Legion Junior baseball tournament in Marion County it was decided to start play on Saturday, May 11 with four teams entered. Each team will play six games during the season. Double headers will be played each Saturday with single games on Tuesday and Wednesday nights after school. All games will be played at Lincoln Park.

The county schedule will end on Saturday, June 1 with the district elimination starting as soon after this date as possible.

In order to prevent most of the veteran players of the league signing up with one team at the start of the following season this rule was adopted: "Any player once signed with a team of this league shall not, at the start of the next season, sign with any other team unless he has been given a release by his manager of the previous season. Any manager who releases a player must do so at least three days before the date set for cutting down the squads to 14 men. Any player who has been released is a free agent and may sign with any other player in the league."

The four teams that are entered in the league have been holding almost daily practices and are rapidly getting into good shape. K. of C. open their season Saturday, May 11, with the strong Eagles plus while the Kiwanis will play the other half of the double bill that day by tangling with the Elks.

The first game of the Saturday double headers will start at 1:15 o'clock while the games on Tuesday and Wednesday will start at 4 o'clock.

RAY LUCAS' BROTHER WILL HURL AGAINST EAGLES 9 SUNDAY

Baseball Season Will Be Opened by Local Team at Lincoln Park

ROY LUCAS, brother of Ray who is hurling with more or less success with the Toledo American Association team this season, will principally hurl against the Marion Eagles baseball team in the industrial diamond contest of the season at Lincoln park at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon when the locals play the Kibler Clubbers of Springfield.

The Kibler team is boasting a well balanced lineup this season. Assistant manager, an injured pitcher in Russ Payton who was in the Virginia State league two years ago. Snare caught for Deratier in the Three Eye last year while Haley another backstop, is a Springfield veteran. Snyder, the Kibler second sacker, played in the KIO loop and Paine, at third place in the Five State league.

The local team will be made up of all home talent players. This will be the first time in many years that an all Marion team has played competitive ball here. The success of the venture will be uncertain.

Loudermilk will probably start the contest for the local nine although Roseberry has been going rather good in pre-season. Tomorrow will be behind the plate.

"HANDS UNSEEN" by HERMAN LANDON
Author of "The Forbidden Door." Landon writes another thrilling mystery story, the adventures of "the Gray Phantom"

Mr. Craig's eyes were carried for a moment on the blunt warning to the last paragraph, and then, with a faint smile, he placed the communication before his predecessor in his inside breast pocket. A series of cold tremors had jugged up and down his back during the perusal, but now a faintly triumphant smile showed in his eyes. The Gray Phantom was weak. Despite the blustering tone of his latest letter and notwithstanding the emphatic threat in the closing lines, it was evident that the master of the house was backing down. Seeing that Mr. Craig was unwilling to submit to a compromise, he declared himself willing to compromise. It was an unexpected psychological move. In Mr. Craig's opinion, for it amounted to a confession of timidity on the Phantom's part, he ought to have known that in a situation like this, to beat half-way retreat was an admission of failure.

Mr. Craig's chest expanded with a sense of contempt for such vacillating tactics. The illusory glamour which the Gray Phantom had wrapped himself was gradually receding before Mr. Craig's eyes, and his courage rose proportionately. After all, the fellow was only a braggart and a fool. His exploits in the past and his doubtless magnified by juvenile newspaper reporters, causing the public to regard him as something of a demigod. His pretensions might be faded others, but they would not fade for Mr. Craig.

Yet, despite these soothing conclusions, he did not feel wholly at ease. The threat in the last paragraph of the letter resounded unpleasantly in his mind. It was just possible that the Phantom had meant it seriously and intended to execute it for the mere effect it would have on others who resided in the mansion.

He sauntered to the window and looked out upon the squalid, frozen landscape, and his new-born courage faded a little. Even the still, gray banks and the hazy film over the water seemed to give a disturbing emphasis to the Phantom's threat. He opened the window and looked down the sheer wall, rising some 30 feet above the ground, without a single projection or declivity to offer foothold, and a sense of security faded the vague uneasiness in his mind. He glanced at the substantial window fastenings and the four solid-looking walls, and his head rose a little higher. In the seclusion of this

"You misunderstand me," Mr. Craig pointed out. "The money was a mere trifle. I am only curious to know how the rascal got in, and naturally I don't want people prowling about my bedroom at night. There must be a way of entering this room that I'm not aware of. Being a carpenter, you might be able to point it out to me."

Green pulled at his drooping mustache for a moment, then stepped to the window and gave the catches a critical inspection.

"Nothing wrong here," he announced. "Sure you had 'em fastened."

"Positive, Green. Wouldn't it be possible for some one to slip a piece of wire between the frames and work the catches that way? It seems I've heard of it being done."

The carpenter looked again, then shook his head. "Nope," he declared. "Them sashes fit too tight for that. Anyhow, didn't you tell me the shutters were closed?"

"So they were Green. Even if a man could work the window catches from the outside, which you tell me is impossible, he would still have to manipulate the shutters some way. It wouldn't be an easy job, I take it."

"It couldn't be done, that's all," asserted Green, after a careful examination of the heavy shutters and their fastenings. "Nope, the rascal must get in some other way."

"What about the door?"

Green inspected it, and pronounced it proof against invasion. He called particular attention to the safety catch which fell into place automatically and clamped the bolt after it had been shot. The hinges and the lock were also found to be in perfect order.

"Then I don't see how the scoundrel got in," said Mr. Craig in a puzzled voice. "Oh, what about the fireplace?"

Green removed the screen and the andirons, got down on his knees and looked up.

"A thin man might slip down the flue," he declared, "but he'd have to be all-fired thin, and he'd make so much racket that he'd wake up everybody in the house. Nope, it can't likely be got in that way."

Mr. Craig contemplated the fireplace with a uneasy expression. Green's assurance seemed to have left a vague doubt in his mind.

"We seem to be stumped, then," he remarked. "That is, unless there is a secret panel somewhere in the floor, walls or ceiling." He smiled indulgently. "I don't take much stock in such things, but the fact remains that somebody sneaked in here last night. Wish you would make sure, Green."

The carpenter did, and for an hour Mr. Craig watched him tapping with his hammer. He made a thorough, workmanlike search, beginning with the floor, continuing along the walls, and then, with the aid of the stop-ladder, extending his inspection to the ceiling. When he finished every square foot of the room had been subjected to a painstaking test.

"Very strange," said Mr. Craig, shaking his head. "I don't understand it at all."

Green wiped his face with a blue handkerchief. "You can take it from me," he said with conviction, "nobody but I don't care how slick they is—can get in here if you keep the door and shutters closed. It'd be easier for a crow to climb up a greased pole. 'Aha,' and he grinned wisely, 'you just mislaid the coin. My wife does that every now and then.'"

"Would I do it?" said Mr. Craig, musingly, trying to dispose of the matter as lightly as possible in order to avoid further gossip. "There seems to be no other explanation. I am sure, if there had been a loophole of any kind, you would have found it. Here, Green."

He extracted a bill from his wallet, and the carpenter thanked him volubly as he saw the numerals in the corner. Alone a moment later, Mr. Craig looked about him with a satisfied air. Green had given him precisely the assurance he wanted. During the slight chance that some one might use the chimney as a mode of entrance, there was no way in which an enemy could come upon him by stealth. The Gray Phantom might be clever, diabolically clever, but even his genius would be inadequate to the task of entering an inaccessible room. Moreover, Mr. Craig would have the company of Harry Bell, who would help him while away the dreary hours. He was beginning to look forward to the coming of night with some eagerness, already congratulating himself upon having frustrated the Phantom's designs.

A rap sounded on the door. It was bolted, so he stepped forward to open it. William stood at attention outside.

"Mr. Bell has just arrived, sir," he announced.

room he could defy the Phantom to do his worst. Discretion being the better part of valor, he would not unnecessarily expose his life to danger. For a day or two he would remain in this room, have his meals sent up, admit no one to his presence except William, and enjoy an occasional laugh at the Phantom's expense.

He laughed now, merely by way of convincing himself that he had nothing to fear, but somehow the laugh sounded a trifle hollow. He glanced at the waterclock along the walls, at the fireplace with its arch of rocks ingrained with mica, at the chaste blue tracings that edged the white ceiling, at the circular ornamentation in the center that supported the brass chains of the chandelier, and a trace of doubt came into his eye. Hesitating, he let his glance once more roam about the room. It had a cheerful aspect, doubtless due to the damask wall-paper. On second thought, his temporary retirement would be less depressing if he had a companion, one who could ask no questions and whom he could absolutely trust.

He thought for a moment, and then a name came to him. He would send for Harry Bell, the private detective. Bell never asked embarrassing questions. He had executed certain delicate missions for Mr. Craig in the past, always acquitting himself to his client's satisfaction. Unless otherwise engaged, Bell could run out to Tuckaway camp on a couple of hours' notice, his movements accelerated by the prospect of a fat fee.

In a moment, Mr. Craig was penning a telegram which he addressed to the detective's office in New York. Then he rang for William.

"I want you to go to the village immediately and file this telegram," he explained when the servant appeared. "Don't send any of the other servants, but go yourself."

"I understand, sir," said William, tucking the telegram into his pocket.

"And, William," said Mr. Craig, shifting his gaze, "I shall remain in this room for a day or two. You will send up what I need and serve my meals here. No talk, you understand."

"You can trust me, sir. What shall I tell Miss Wayne?"

"My niece needn't be told anything," said Mr. Craig stiffly. "By the way," and his glance slid appraisingly over the walls and ceiling, "I suppose there's a carpenter or a builder in the village?"

The servant betrayed a slight start. "I believe there is, sir. I think his name is Green."

"Very well, fetch Green back with you and show him up as soon as you return. Have him bring a few tools along. That's all."

Precisions

William departed, and Mr. Craig spent the next half hour inventing a plausible subterfuge to cover his real reason for sending for Green. He had one ready when William ushered the artisan into the room.

"Being a steepladder," William," he commanded.

The servant brought the desired article and was dismissed. Mr. Craig looked the door and turned to the carpenter, a married, sturdy man who carried himself with a capable air. Efficient but unimpressive, he observed with approval.

"There's something I'm very curious about," he confided lightly, as if the matter were of no great consequence, "and I hope you can clear up the mystery for me. Last night I slept in this room. The door was bolted, just as you see it now. The window was locked, and the shutters securely fastened on the inside. It doesn't seem possible anybody could have got into the room, and yet a sum of money disappeared from my pocket during the night."

"Gosh!" exclaimed Green, his unkempt brows crinkling up. "I guess the man you want is Sam Downman, the constable. My job is carpentering, not catching thieves." Green looked at his tool kit as if about to pick it up and walk off.

Jubilee's Pardner
A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure
By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

WARM and banany again. I let Jubilee down and got into my britches as fast as I could and hiked down and fired the fire for my mother to get the breakfast on, and then I grabbed the milk pail and hiked out, so that I had the cows almost milked when the bunch got there.

When I had fed my face we all hiked out for the vacant lot and the sun was just coming up and everything was wet with dew, and I didn't want to go to school so bad it almost hurt. When we had got to the pasture we were all warm from running after the cows, so that is when a fella like a swim, and we scattered our clothes as we ran for the creek and I had just begun the holler that the last one in would know what he was and we didn't any of us have on any more clothes than a rabbit, when just as we got to the top of the bank a young man and a young woman raised their heads up. She had a big bunch of violets in one hand and he was just holding another bunch out to her, and I was going to fast to be the first to that I couldn't stop and I went right between them, knocking the violets every which way and then I took a belly-slammer into the creek and went down wishing that I was a mud turtle so that I could stay under a long time. When I came up I was swimming upstream and I swam and washed till I got around a bend. Then I clumb out and stood up amongst some bushes and the bunch was running across the pasture as naked as jaybirds, and the young man and young woman was standing on the top of the bank watching them and laughing. They ought to be ashamed of themselves. They took so long to go away that by the time we could get our clothes we were late and we all had to stay after school.

Youness and her mother and father came over after supper and Annabelle Lee was playing around, and me and Youness was looking at a picture book, and my mother said to Annabelle Lee, "It is time for you to go to bed, young lady," and then someone started talking about something else, and pretty soon my mother asked me where Annabelle Lee was, and nobody knew, and my mother called her and we heard her laugh behind the piano, and I yelled to her to come out of there, and then she came running out, and she had taken off all of her clothes because my mother said it was her bedtime. I was so ashamed I snuck out and went to bed. I could hear them laughing after I got in bed, and my mother came to the stair door and called me over, but I told her I was in bed. Because Annabelle Lee done it they thought it was funny. If I would do a thing like that I would not be a hick. I wouldn't do it though. I wonder what kind of people Youness thinks we are.

Mrs. Ticer Tells Madge She is Worried

"SUCH" been going on like that ever since Miss Lincoln left," Mrs. Ticer said worriedly, as Noel and I heard the sob in the adjoining room. "She kept up all right, was as brave as could be until the girl was out of sight. Then she broke down—and that old man—her husband—be just made her worse, scolding her as if she were a naughty child. I didn't know but he was going to take a stick to her. My! but wouldn't I like to be married to him for just about a half hour. I'd show him what damage an upstanding American wife could do with a rolling pin and a stove shovel. I wouldn't leave a whole bone in his body—the old hully."

The contrast between her almost whispering tones and her vicious threats almost upset my gravity, and I think, Noel's as well.

"You say she's been crying this way ever since Miss Lincoln left?" I asked hurriedly, hoping my easily-offended neighbor would not detect the twitching of my lips.

"She hasn't stopped once," Mrs. Ticer answered.

"She'll make herself ill," I commented, more troubled than I cared to let my neighbor see. If this old servant of Princess Olinia's were to have another heart attack such as had nearly carried her off earlier in the summer, she could not travel to her home, and thus our problem of protecting her young mistress would be greatly complicated.

"I know it," Mrs. Ticer said, "but what's to be done? I tried to talk to her, but she wouldn't even look at me. If you—she stopped and glanced obliquely at me.

I squared my shoulders, for I knew that I must at least make an attempt to soothe the poor old woman in the next room.

"I'll do what I can," I said, "although I am afraid the result will be zero. But let me go in alone. Noel will go with Mrs. Lincoln—and keep him so engaged in talk that he will not interrupt us."

"I'll go right away," Noel said with alacrity, and Mrs. Ticer leaned toward me with a mysterious air.

"Do you know, I think Miss Noel's real reason for the old woman setting up this way," she confided to me. "I don't think she has anything against him personally, but for some reason or other she's just wild for fear her piece—will marry him."

She shot a meaningful glance at me as she finished, and with a whimsical memory of Katie's advice, I leaned toward her with a significant

COOPER BATTERIES
O BROS.
WHAT TERRIBLE EVIL LAY BEHIND ITS MASK.

BY HERMAN LANDON

FORTY-SEVEN

HE gave a hard laugh and pointed the weapon toward the door. In an instant Viola saw the meaning of the pantomime. She jerked up her brown head and stared at him. A gleam of hope shone in her eyes. Then her face clouded.

"No, it's too simple, dear. The doctor is too crafty not to have foreseen such a thing. And he is probably listening behind the door this very moment. If he hears no shot, then he knows you haven't done as he told you."

Hannan nodded dully, a fearful agony wrenching at his heart. "Viola was right; Traymore was too clever not to anticipate such a simple expedient. Well, he could at least try."

The clock ticked merrily on. The eyes in the bronze head continued blinking. Viola would her arms about his neck and hold him close. Three minutes—no minutes. Her hold tightened as if she were determined never to let him go. One minute—

"Kiss me again, Hannan, and then do it quick."

Hannan kissed her. Her lips had the added sweetness of an ecstasy that is fleeting and therefore doubly precious. Something drew his eyes to the bronze face. Did he imagine it, or was Old Winthrop smiling encouragement?

A convulsive shudder agitated the arm round about his neck. There was a sound at the door. He sprang up and held the pistol leveled.

"Oh, dear! He's coming! You must—"

Hannan heard nothing more. There were flashes before his eyes; his brain was burning. Behind him sounded Viola's quickened breathing; and then, of a sudden, she seemed to be breathing no more.

His hand was shaking; he exerted all his will power to steady it. Still the clock ticked on, still the eyes blinked. The crawling moments of destiny, the tangled currents of life and love and death. And there was something else besides, something that permeated the whole scene with its dynamics of terror and dread—the lingering, watchful wrath of Old Winthrop.

The door started to open. His hand was steady now, but he waited until the hateful face was in full view. A grim, savage exultation coursed through his veins. He did not look back, but he knew Viola had risen and stood behind him, holding her breath.

A vision of pale loveliness, and behind it the shadowy countenance of Old Winthrop, aware before his eyes as he took aim and pressed the trigger.

A crack of thunder came, then a bluish, delicious interval. Traymore's mocking laugh broke shrilly on his dazed senses.

"It was only an empty shell, Hannan."

With a crushing sense of defeat, Hannan looked down at the pistol in his hand. Viola was pressing close to him. Again Traymore spoke:

"I didn't mean you should kill her. I have other intentions. But it was an interesting test. You are nothing but a romantic fool, Hannan."

In a convulsion of tenderness and despair Hannan hugged the girl to him. A vision came to him, a picture of rose petals scattered and crushed.

"I'm in no hurry," said Traymore. "Take your time. These scenes amuse me."

He chuckled with faint malice. His eyes smiled with cold hate as he watched them.

A king or two in in order on such a solemn occasion. It is your last chance. He made a slight gesture with the automatic.

In cold horror Hannan stared into his face. He knew Traymore hated them both with all the intensity of frustrated desire. Traymore, with a face that made people recoil in abhorrence, could never again know a woman's love. The ache, the wanting, had turned into malignity.

Hannan looked aside. He could no longer endure the sight of the doctor's face, far more horrible at this moment than at their first meeting. He looked at the useless little pistol in his hand. A groan escaped him. Life, the glamorous thing he had loved, was a matter of moments only. But there was still a chance, though promise—Oh, well—there is one more beautiful thing in life."

He turned and looked at Viola, smile of maddening gloom on his lips. For an instant the sight of her seemed to hold him in a trance. And an instant was all Hannan needed.

A wild thrill ran through him. His fingers tightened about the weapon containing the empty shell. His arms swung back, then described a swift forward curve. The pistol darted through the air and crashed against the doctor's temple.

The doctor uttered a hoarse, choking cry. He swayed, steadied himself, grimed abominably, and aimed the weapon to hold. Hannan leaped, and their bodies crashed. They went reeling to the floor, rolled over, and over. Viola screamed. The air was full of swirling muscles. Spots of crimson dashed before her eyes. At length Traymore lay still, stunned.

Hannan rose and came limply toward her. He looked down at the little pistol he had hurled at Traymore's head.

"Look!" he cried giddily. "It's a pearl-handled one!"

Then silence fell over the room. They stood spell-bound. Then, to a dazed, glad voice, Viola cried:

"Hannan—darling—we're safe—Oh, my dear!"

Hannan's arm went around her. He fixed an awed, wondering gaze on the bronze face.

"Yes—safe—thanks to Old Winthrop!"

Tad Called His Heart One of Dime-a-Dozen Tickers

NEW YORK, May 3.—Up to a week ago Tad, the famous wit and cartoonist who died yesterday, kept working in the home in which he was virtually a prisoner, for seven years, making people laugh at the absurdities of human nature as he delineated it in his famous "Tadpole Sports."

Tad—his real name was Thomas Alexander Doran—made his first appearance in 1917. Seven years ago specialists told Tad frankly that his heart was extremely bad and that he could live but from three to four months at the most.

Tad laughed, chided the doctors gently in his curious, and reserved, with affected cynicism, to his recumbent berth—just one

It helped me with all my troubles and gave me an appetite where before I didn't eat at all. I did all of my housework up to the day my baby came, as I am a farmer's wife and could not afford help. I feel just dandy now and I will answer any letters and I will tell every one how good this medicine is."—Mrs. Ira Arnold.

"I read an ad. in the newspaper and I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will recommend this medicine to any woman who is in bad shape like I was. I used to get so tired after a few hours' work that I was even afraid in my own house in the daytime. I didn't care if I lived or died. # GIBSON CALLS FOR LEAGUE SHOWDOWN

Deadlock Develops Over War Materials at Disarmament Session

GENEVA, May 3.—With a deadlock developed in the meeting of the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission over war materials, Hugh Gibson, the American delegate, today demanded a "show down" by Saturday.

"Twenty-six speakers are deadlocked upon the issues of direct or indirect limitation of war supplies," said Nicholas Puhlin of Greece, the presiding officer. "Personally I favor Mr. Gibson's publicity plan."

Maxim Litvinoff of Russia heckled the speakers continuously, and caused the sidetracking of a resolution containing Mr. Gibson's proposals on limitation of war supplies, war supply budgets and publicity to reveal the war materials on hand in the various states.

One faction wants "direct reduction of war supplies and the budgets providing for their purchase." Another faction wants "indirect limitation" so that any convention that may eventually be drawn will limit the subject lightly.

The United States had sided with France for "indirect limitation" although Hugh Gibson, the American delegate, said his country favors the widest publicity so that the whole world would thus know the amount of reserve war supplies held by each of the big powers.

CHEMISTS END THEIR COLUMBUS SESSIONS

Visit Industries in Dayton and Other Ohio Cities; Form New Organization

COLUMBUS, May 3.—Industry-Inspection trips to Dayton and other Ohio cities, today marked the closing of the seventy-seventh annual convention of the American Chemical Society, which attracted 2,000 chemists and scientists to this city during the past four days to listen to explanations of the intricacies, wonders and technicalities of the chemistry world.

The closing conference formed a new international organization to be known as the society of rheology.

Rheology, it was explained, is the science of flow—the study of the reasons why water, liquids and solids flow.

The last is what might be called a paradox, but sponsors of the society gave assurances that solids, such as cement, iron and glass flow, not only when heated, but also when serving their every-day purposes.

Collapse of bridges and dams, which oftentimes have claimed hundreds of lives and millions in property damage, have been laid to the "flowing" physical quality of cement and iron.

It can readily be seen, therefore, that if the newly-organized group can find a means to combat the "flowing" tendencies in solids, a great service will be rendered to the world through the realm of chemistry and science.

KONJOLA ENDED DOUBLE AILMENT AFTER 15 YEARS

Stomach and Kidney Troubles Yielded to New Medicine—Feels Like a Different Man

MR. H. RENFELLA

Mr. Renfella's confidence in Konjola was certainly rewarded, said Mr. H. Renfella, 714 Second Street, New Philadelphia. "For fifteen years my life had been miserable due to the suffering I endured from stomach and kidney troubles. I tried many medicines but always met with failure. If I ate certain foods I suffered agonies. My stomach bloated and I had no appetite. I lost weight and strength. I was nervous and my sleep was frequently disturbed by frequent bladder relays."

A neighbor recommended Konjola and this new medicine seemed to fit my case exactly. Two bottles made a marked improvement. My kidneys were strengthened and my stomach is in perfect condition. Now strength and energy are mine. I have never heard of any medicine that can be compared to Konjola. I know that others will be interested in my happy experience."

Konjola is sold in Marion at Clump & Sons Hardware and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

SECRET OF "MAN" IS BARED BY DEATH

Known as "Model Husband" for 20 Years; Refused Medical Aid

OAKLAND, Cal., May 3.—Death today had stripped the masquerade from a woman who for fully 20 years had posed as a man, married, worked in a Washington, D. C., munitions plant and performed other hard manual labor without her true sex ever having been suspected.

"Peter Stratford," model husband, literally gave her life to protect her secret, for when stricken with tuberculosis she refused medical attention lest her disguise be penetrated. It was not until she was dying and an ambulance from a local hospital called at a Niles, Cal., hotel, where "Mr. Stratford and wife" had lived for two years, that the truth was hinted.

"I'm not a man; I'm a woman," was the whisper that startled Walter C. Smith, ambulance driver. When he reached her 35 miles to the hospital, she there tried again to resume her status of a man.

But Smith told physicians about that whisper and investigation by Dr. Charles Schwartz revealed that the patient was a woman.

When authorities took her to the Niles hotel to question "his wife," they found she had hastily departed, leaving no clue to her destination and the identity of "Peter Stratford."

Mrs. C. L. Christensen, proprietress of the hotel, declared she had never suspected that the "model husband" was otherwise.

The age of "Peter Stratford" was given as 47. Mrs. Christensen said she understood that "he" had come from London, England, to this country 20 years ago.

SCHEDULE GAMES

Church and Lodge Leagues To Open May 13 at Bucyrus

BUCYRUS, May 3.—The commission of representatives of the various teams entered for the summer's baseball tournament of the Church and Lodge-Industrial leagues met at the Y. M. C. A. last night to complete the arrangements for this summer's play.

The first teams will meet for play on May 13, the games to be played on two diamonds at the playgrounds, the high school field and one field on the south side and two fields at Aumiller park.

The baseball commission who have been selected to supervise and conduct the season's tournament are Don Matthews, Bruce Shurlock, Ralph Carver, George Heckler and E. D. Dargan.

GOOD POULTRY IS BEST

The experience of buyers of baby chicks from Erley Poultry Farms, indicates that high quality baby chicks are becoming more and more popular all the time. A. L. Everett, manager of the Erley Poultry Farms, says that there is more demand for their very best grade of chicks than there is for their lower priced grade. This is reasonable to expect in view of the information recently given out by the Ohio State University Extension Service, which indicated that a hen producing under 100 eggs, hardly paid for more than her feed, while a hen producing 200 eggs, gave a profit of about $5.00 over and above feed cost.

Erley Poultry Farm chicks are of the highest quality and if you want good chicks which will grow into the $2.00 kind of pullets you should get in touch with the Erley Poultry Farms, Delaware, or 25 W. Bancum Street, Columbus, Ohio, either by phone or by letter.—Advt.

Central Junior High Wins Hobby Trophy; Greenwood Gets Bird House Award

Judges Give Decisions in Two Contests Held in Connection with Boys' Week Observance; Court of Honor To Close Week's Program

Mainly through the efforts of three students, Central Junior high school won the Glosser-Schoenbach trophy, the prize for the school winning the hobby exhibit which came to a close at the Marion Y. M. C. A. last night after a large number of people had visited it from 7 until 9 o'clock.

Dr. L. A. Stengel assisted Carl May and Walter C. Brown in judging the various exhibits. These men also judged the bird house exhibit, which was won by Clark Wideman, a seventh grade student at Greenwood. Through his work on the winning bird house, his school will be awarded the Rosenberger-Kleinmeyer trophy at the court of honor Saturday night.

Both exhibits are a part of Marion's observance of National Boys' week, which will close Saturday.

Due to the fact that the hobbies that entered ranged over so wide a field it was decided by the judges to use the point system of scoring to determine which school should get the Glosser-Schoenbach cup but to award individual badges to the different classes.

Division Made
Under this plan the hobbies were divided into the following classes: art, coins, stamps, handicraft, Indian relics and miscellaneous. First, second and third places were awarded in each of these classes with five points being given for first place, three points for second, and one for third. Central Junior scored one first place, three second places and one third and a tie for a third. This gave them a total

GALION RESIDENT CLAIMED BY DEATH

GALION, May 3.—Funeral services for William T. Newman, 31, who died Wednesday night at 9:30 o'clock at his home, Harding Way East, will be held Saturday at 2 o'clock at the home of his parents, 1000 Harding Way East. He is survived by his widow, parents and two children, Audrey and Robert.

SISTER OF KIDNAPED WOMAN IS MISSING

New Mystery Enters Chicago Slugging; Gunman Identified

CHICAGO, May 3.—New mystery today entered the slugging and kidnapping of Miss Rosalie Rizzo, 20-year-old telephone operator, who yesterday was abducted from her home by two well-known gunmen. Her sister, Mrs. Harold Carr, was mysteriously missing today after receiving a telephone call from Miss Rizzo stating she was safe and in the city.

From the mysterious actions of Mrs. Carr, police believe she was threatened or perhaps kidnapped, also. It was learned that the gunmen, before they went to the rooming house of Allen Ferris, where Miss Rizzo lived, had gone to the Carr home, had beaten Mrs. Carr and then left for the Ferris residence.

There, they slugged Ferris and dragged Miss Rizzo into a waiting automobile. Police said they learned one of the gunmen was John Toney, police character.

HITS POWER TRUST OWNED NEWSPAPERS

Norris Leads Attack in Congress; Suggests Exclusion from Mails

WASHINGTON, May 3.—A demand for congressional action to prevent the purchase of private newspapers by the so-called power trust, possibly by excluding such publications from the United States Mails, was spreading today with the senate insurgent bloc leading the way.

Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, head of the bloc, announced he was studying the possibility of placing a legislative curb on the power trust. He declared the public utilities, revealed as having bought stock in a dozen different newspapers, were "slowly poisoning the source of information for the American people." He said he felt congress could act against the power trust under the public welfare clause of the constitution.

Other members of the insurgent bloc rallied behind Norris.

GALION—The Ladies' Missionary society of the First Reformed church held its annual meeting with the election of officers in the Sunday school room yesterday afternoon. The meeting was called to order with 30 in attendance. Miss Hulda Klapp was elected for the third time to serve as president; Mrs. Earl Clements was elected vice president; Mrs. Caroline Plack secretary and Mrs. Emanuel Rensch treasurer. Following the business meeting, the members enjoyed readings given by Emma Dursch and Martha Smith. A supper was served in the church basement.

WILSON SECRETARIES OWNED STOCK, CLAIM

Opponents of Mellon Suffer Setback in Move To Oust Him

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The effort to force Andrew W. Mellon out of the cabinet because of his large stock ownership in corporations suffered a setback today when it was learned that the three Democrats, who served as secretary of the treasury under Woodrow Wilson, all owned stock.

William Gibbs McAdoo, the wartime president's son-in-law; Carter Glass, now a senator from Virginia; and David F. Houston all possessed corporation securities while secretary of the treasury. The question whether their holdings made them ineligible for the treasury post under the 100-year-old law forbidding the secretary from "being interested in or carrying on the business of trade or commerce," never was raised against any of them.

Glass Opposes Note
Senator Glass told International News Service how he and his Democratic colleagues held stock while at the head of the treasury. He incidentally announced he would oppose the present move to oust Mellon.

"Of course, I owned stock while secretary of the treasury," said Glass, in his Virginia drawl. "So did McAdoo and Houston, too. Why, I was the largest individual stockholder in an industry down in my state all the time I was in the treasury. But I did give up my bank stock, though that wasn't hard to do because I owned so little."

Then Glass demanded: "Are you in favor of going to the postoffice in order to become secretary of the treasury?"

TOLEDO HIT BY RAIN; SECTION IS FLOODED

12 Families Homeless as Water Surrounds 100 Lake-Front Homes

TOLEDO, May 3.—Twelve families were driven from their homes, a hundred other residences were surrounded by water, as a result of the terrific wind and rain storms which hit Toledo yesterday afternoon.

Most of the suffering is at Point Place, a lake-front suburb.

The storm was the third severe weather disturbance to strike here during the past month.

Streams were reported at high stages, but no alarm was felt as the waters were receding today.

The wind, driving the waters of Lake Erie before it, piled up over the breakwaters and shore-lines, inundating lowlands and flooding lake roads.

RIVERS LEAVE BANKS IN SOUTHEASTERN OHIO

MARIETTA, May 3.—Southeastern Ohio is recovering today from cyclonic winds and torrential rainfall of Thursday night.

However, streams are out of their banks today, and highways in various sections are inundated.

The most severe storm swept in from the east, and did much damage in the vicinity of dam No. 17, six miles north of Marietta on the Ohio river.

The government power plant there was unroofed and other buildings were damaged.

TWO HOMES UNOOFED NEAR NEW LEXINGTON

NEW LEXINGTON, May 3.—Two houses were unroofed near McClintony yesterday afternoon when a strong wind storm hit this section, accompanied by a heavy rain, which flooded many county roads. Fruit crops suffered damage, according to surveys.

Water flooded the railroad yards and depot at Corning, near here, but was receding today.

STORM DAMAGE IS HEAVY IN PENNSYLVANIA

PITTSBURGH, May 3.—One death, uncounted injuries and an estimated million dollars property loss was the toll enacted from "Peanutty" by wind and rain storms which ripped through the state yesterday.

A miniature tornado, sweeping the Indiana Creek valley near Conowingo, left in its wake seven injured, scores suffering from minor hurts and damage amounting to $300,000.

The general store and ten other buildings at Davisburg were demolished. A bridge was swept away and homes unroofed throughout the section.

2 TRAINMEN KILLED IN TRACK WASHOUT

Double-Header Freight Runs into Break in Rails; Victims Drown

SAYRE, Pa., May 3.—Two trainmen were killed and two others were injured when a double-header freight train ran into a washout near Oswego, N. Y., on the Auburn division of the Lehigh Valley railroad early today.

BRUCK MURDERED

Sherriff Advances "Dope-Ring" Theory in Cincinnati Slaying

DAYTON, May 3.—That August Bruck, former headman of George Remus, former bootleg king and with-slayer, whose bullet-riddled body was found in a room in a fashionable Cincinnati hotel Wednesday morning, may have been slain because of his connections with a large "dope-ring" was the theory advanced by Sheriff Robert M. Blank here today.

Three of the principals in the case, Bruck, Joe Plunkett and Edward Hall, called at the jail here Sunday evening before the work of the slaying, it became known today.

They asked to see two women who had been jailed on a "shop-lifting" charge. The women had been sent to Miami Valley hospital for treatment for narcotics. The men called at the hospital and saw them there.

HOTEL MEN HOLD DISTRICT MEETING

50 Attend Session Here Today; Hear Address by State President

Approximately 50 members of districts 9 and 11 of the Ohio Hotels association were present at the joint meeting of the two districts held today in Hotel Harding through the courtesy of C. D. Mittenbiller, manager of Hotel Harding. Dinner was served at noon in the ballroom of the hotel, the guests being entertained during the dinner by the Hotel Harding orchestra.

C. E. Klunk, owner of the Marion Hotel and president of the Marion Hotels association, which arranged the program for this afternoon, opened the meeting with an address of welcome and then introduced J. H. Liss, of Fremont, state president of the Ohio Hotels association, who took charge of the meeting.

Mr. Liss told of the purpose of the meeting, which is the first of the many group meetings to be held throughout the state during May. He commended the Marion district for its fine work and success in being the first district to get organized for the spring group meetings.

Following Mr. Liss' talk the guests visited the Harding Memorial in a body and placed a wreath at the tomb of the late President Harding. Following this they went to the Marion cemetery, where they placed a wreath on the grave of Charles T. Ganvey, former manager of Hotel Harding and prominent in Ohio hotel work. They were taken to the memorial and cemetery in several buses furnished by the Marion Rapid Transit Co. A group picture of the delegates was taken at the memorial.

forces who will be the honor of the bride.

This is by no means an easy task since with the passing of the years the list of prominent and illustrious young women from whom the Prince could choose a bride has been steadily reduced.

Under the terms of the Royal Marriages Act the heir to the throne is supposed to marry a direct descendant of the blood royal. The Act has been rendered flexible through the ages, however, and at present there is nothing to prevent the Prince from marrying, whenever he chooses.

Linked by Rumor
Ever since he attained his majority the Prince has been linked by rumor and report to literally scores of young women. Among them have been a number of royal princesses including members of the ruling houses of Italy, Spain, Belgium, Denmark and Sweden.

One by one, however, these rumors have been dispelled either by the marriage of the lady concerned or by the passage of time until today there is hardly an eligible princess left.

Similarly, the English princesses who have been looked upon as future queens because of their royal lineage, only one remains on the so-called eligible list. She is the late Mrs. Cambridge, daughter of the Earl and Countess of Athlone. The Earl of Athlone is at present Governor General of South Africa.

Modern Girl
Undoubtedly this would be a good match in the eyes of the English nation. Lady Mary is 22, a thoroughly modern girl and a favorite niece of the Prince's mother, Queen Mary.

In recent years the name of the Prince has been linked with three other English girls in addition to Lady Mary as follows:

Lady Rachel Cavendish, fourth daughter of the extremely wealthy Duke of Devonshire; Lady Mary Thorne, youngest daughter of the Marquis of Bath; and Lady Anne Wellesley, a society girl of 18 noted for her old-fashioned ways.

Who Shall Be King? O. S. U. Students Ask Prom Queen

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University
COLUMBUS, O., May 2.—Who shall be king?
That's the problem which is puzzling students at Ohio State today as the date for the "Shroeder" annual prom of the sophomore class draws near.
Since kings are very seldom chosen at any university, and especially Ohio State, where there is no tradition of "queens," no problem over a prom queen has been presented to the students of a popular university and students are presently awaiting the announcement revealing the name of the lucky man who will reign as "king for a day."

The word happens to be Mike Martin, of Toledo, who became president of the sophomore class.

60 AIR FIELDS
Alphons, Brine "New Life" To Alaska. Governor Parks

CHICAGO — "Alphons" have been working in Alaska. There are many landing fields at strategic points throughout the territory, regular air mail service, four commercial air lines and several others.

There was the dedication made here by Gov. G. A. Parks, of Alaska, yesterday in Chicago. Governor Parks pointed out how planes in Alaska, formerly isolated except for connections by dog trails, were now within a few hours of population centers because of the airplane. Much of the fur is now brought to population centers because of the plane, he said. Alaska pulp and paper projects are prospering, Gov. Parks said. There is timber enough in Alaska for 1,200,000 tons annually in perpetuity and undeveloped water power to the extent of 2,000,000 horsepower. Mining is also making great progress, he said.

You pay for KELLYS—why not have KELLYS?

SOME people buy "mail order" tires under the impression that they are saving money. Others buy Kelly-Springfields—and don't have to pay any more for them.

Contrary to general belief, Kelly-Springfield tires are not high-priced. Their reputation has given many people the idea that because Kellys are so good they must cost more.

If you'll drop in and see us the next time you are in the neighborhood, we believe you'll be surprised to learn how Kelly prices run.

Besides, we can make you a trade-in allowance on your present tires—and put the new ones on for you.

When you can buy the best for the same price, why be content with less?
